

What if the world had no borders, would there be peace or chaos?

It may seem today that the world is divided by borders, but its significance can be felt if we imagine a world Without Borders. It will lead to at most chaos. There would be no privacy, no security, no harmony, no control over rulers, etc. Every country consists of a set of like-minded people. This helps them to choose their governance in the way they feel is right. If there is uniformity in everything, then everyone's choice will not be taken into consideration, and hence they will protest. On the other hand, if they are divided into different countries, they will live in peace with each other. It will be easy to govern them, listen to them, and justify them. Division of the world also helps people practice and profess different religions, cultures, identities, ethnicities, and languages. This allows the exchange of culture amongst different countries. Considering a situation where there will be no borders, people will roam around enraged, not being able to live their lives freely, they may take out rallies, they might even commit horrible crimes like murders, etc. The government also won't be able to control such a huge population. In essence, we can say that it may seem wrong to have the world divided by borders but the world divided by borders but the truth is that it helps to keep us united and respect ideals and beliefs from different areas. Therefore, having borders is a blessing in disguise.
